OLD HAWAIIAN MUSICAL TREAT PROMISED BY ERNEST KAAI THURSDAY

A fitting finale for the Mid-Pacific Carnival with its dances, theatricals, sports, fireworks and what-not will be the Ernest Kaai concert at the Hawaiian Opera house next Thursday evening. Kaai's concert with the fascinating Hawaiian music, plaintive love songs and novel dances have always been one of the features in local amusements and the musician states that the coming entertainment will excel former ones.

Mr. Kaai is giving his concert next week for the benefit of visitors to Hawaii who have not yet heard the old Hawaiian music. A special feature of the evening's entertainment will be the brief native play descriptive of life in old Hawaii. The characters in this part will be sons and daughters of warriors to whom stories of the lives of their forefathers have been handed down generation after generation. Kaai's royal Hawaiian musicians have been rehearsing for weeks past and will introduce at this performance many of the unfamiliar native airs as well as those known to everyone. The Royal Hawaiians have toured the United States and Australia, leaving only pleasant memories in both countries and through the medium of the talking machine have sung their melodies the world over.

The hula dancers who always afford strangers and kamaeas much pleasure will have a part in the coming entertainment. For this production Kaai has secured some of the best dancers in the territory who will introduce the dance in several different forms.

An unusual program has been arranged for and with the help of a number of society women who have promised to aid in the affair there is no doubt that the performance will be a success. It is to be hoped that all tourists in the city will avail themselves of the wonderful opportunity to hear the music of Hawaii played on native and foreign instruments.

RING NOTABLES ON SONOMA AS USUAL

It is seldom that the Australian liners touch here without some light of the pugilistic world aboard, and the Sonoma, which docked this morning, was no exception to the rule.

W. Hohberg, a fighter who has been showing considerable skill in Australia, and who recently won a 20 round decision over Ray Bronson, in that country, is one of the passengers. He is going first to the states and later to his home in Denmark for a visit.

A globe-trotting ring enthusiast on the Sonoma is P. C. Levy, editor of a sporting periodical of Paris, called "La Boxe et les Boxeurs." He has been giving the game in the Antipodes a look over.

POSES AS A MARINER. PASSES BAD CHECKS

[By Latest Mail]
PORTLAND—Posing as Robert A. White, chief steward of the liner Harvard, a man passed three checks on a local hotel here January 14th. The checks were sent to San Francisco for collection, coming back marked "No funds."

Investigation at the ticket office of the company here disclosed the fact that no such person ever was steward on the Harvard. Printed cards bearing the name of Robert A. White, chief steward of the steamer Harvard, played a part in the man's scheme. The forger has escaped.

BROTHER OF CHANCELLOR DAY DIES IN NEGLECT

[By Latest Mail]
SEATTLE—John H. Day, who died of neglect in a hotel in Anacortes, a small town near here, was identified as the brother of Chancellor James R. Day of Syracuse University in a letter received by Prosecuting Attorney Beagle of Skagit county from the chancellor.

John H. Day traded his farm at Deming, Wash., for a hotel in Anacortes in November. His death December 8th was stated to be due to neglect. On the same evening without arranging anything for the burial, Roscoe Day, his son, disappeared after disposing of his father's property and has not been seen since. The body lay in Anacortes for two weeks.

Lodgers finally took a collection and buried Day at Deming, December 28th. Identity was established through papers found in the effects. The letter to Beagle fully confirmed the identity of the man who died of neglect.

TRANSPORT CAPTAIN IS SUED FOR DIVORCE

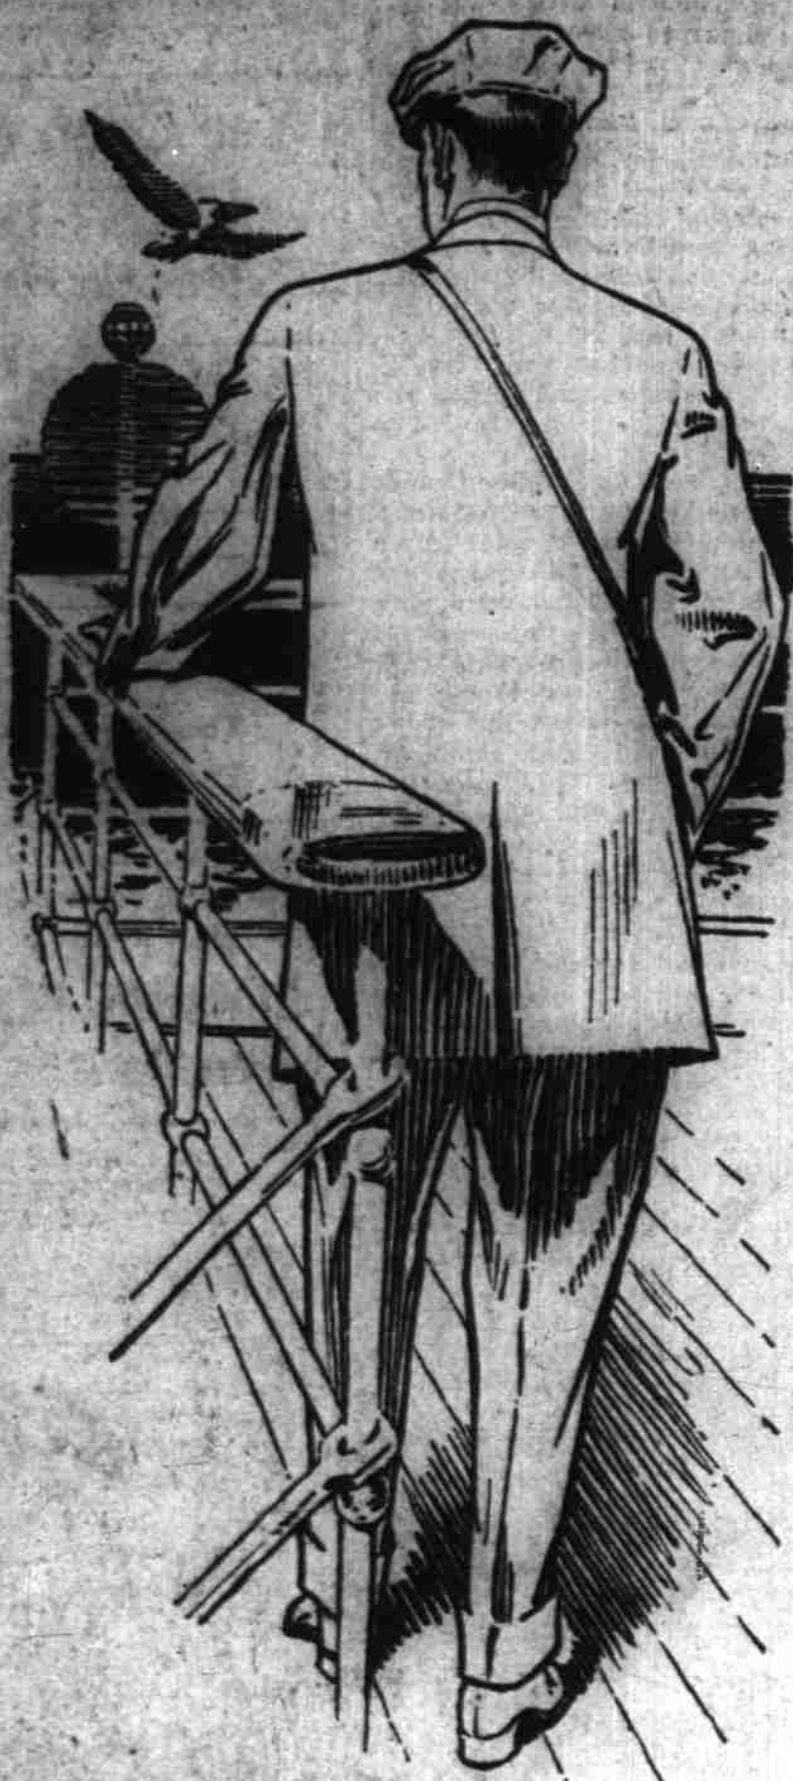

[By Latest Mail]
SAN FRANCISCO—Because her maritime husband, after he returns from a long voyage, fails to rush to her arms and spurns her protestations of affection, Mrs. Anita Hall of 645 Santa Ray avenue, Oakland, wants a divorce from him, and in a complaint filed in Oakland tells her troubles at length and asks that the captain give her $50 a month alimony.

Captain Hall is a civilian master in the army transport service, and his duties carry him between San Francisco and Manila with clock-work regularity. That's bad enough, according to Mrs. Hall's complaint, but she could stand his absences that last for many weeks providing he would appear to be glad to see her when he got home from a trip.

"Perhaps you could get to the office earlier if you had an alarm clock," "I had one, but it made such a general disturbance that I had to give it up. You see, our cook doesn't breakfast until 9 o'clock."
